The Class of 1970 Scholarship: Honoring Paths Less Traveled

Established by the proud and forward-thinking alumni of the Haddon Township High School Class of 1970, this scholarship recognizes that the journey toward success takes many forms. With deep appreciation for the diversity of today's graduates and their aspirations, the Class of 1970 Scholarship is awarded annually to a student who is charting a non-traditional or alternative path after high school. Whether pursuing technical or vocational training, entering the military, joining an apprenticeship, or entering directly into the workforce with a long-term goal in mind, this scholarship uplifts those whose ambitions lie beyond the typical four-year college route.

The Class of 1970, now more than 50 years past their own graduation, knows that real-world experience, practical skill, and community commitment can be just as meaningful as classroom achievement. Their scholarship seeks to support students who demonstrate determination, resourcefulness, and a strong sense of purpose—students who may be welding, coding, serving, building, or training their way toward a brighter future.

Applicants are evaluated through a multifaceted lens that includes an original essay outlining their goals and motivations, their performance and growth throughout high school, and their involvement in community service or civic engagement. This holistic review ensures that recipients are not only capable and focused but also connected to their communities and committed to making a positive impact.

By offering this scholarship, the Class of 1970 continues to give back to the school and town that shaped them, while honoring the broad spectrum of talents and ambitions among today's graduates. It is a testament to the value of all post-secondary paths and to the belief that success is defined not by a single route, but by passion, purpose, and perseverance.
